IF YOU WANT A KISS, TAKE IT.

There is a jolly Saxon proverb that is pretty much like this: That a man is half in heaven when he has a woman's kiss. But there is danger in delaying. And the sweetest may forsake it; So I tell you husband lover, If you want a kiss, why take it. Never let another fellow steal a march on you in this; Never let a laughing maiden see you spoiling for a kiss. There's a royal way of kissing, And the jolly ones that make it have a motto that make it: If you want a kiss, why take it. Any fool may face a cannon—Anybody wear a crown—But a man must win a woman If he'd have her for his own. He'd have a golden apple, And he'd find a tree and shake it; If it's the sweetest part of loving Is to want a kiss—and take it.

FRAGMENTS OF THE EARLY HISTORY OF OHIO COUNTY.

BY H. D. TAYLOR.

CHAPTER XXV.

Old Mrs. Taylor believing in that text of Scripture which says "Man shall not live on bread alone," did not confine her benevolence to distributing the loaf to the hungry mill boys, but was ever ready to relieve the sick and suffering, no matter what their condition in life. Poor, dying mothers, leaving helpless children, would often begueth them to her care; and in this way her house became almost an asylum, during the ravages of the Revolutionary war. It is said that at times she had as many as thirty odd children all dependent upon her for food and raiment. She, too, was the principal surgeon and physician of the then backwoods settlement. With her hand ever in her pocket, she was ever ready to replace dislocated joints, set broken bones, and lance or bleed as required, with the nerve of a hospital surgeon, although the wail of a feeble infant, or any tale of sorrow or suffering, would always bring tears to her eyes.

She had been raised and always held to the old church of England, or Episcopal faith, (several of her old prayer books are still extant,) but she was always liberal and kind to other denominations, and their preachers made her house their resting place. She did not, however, approve of the ranting, furious, wild-fire (as she called it) of some of the Methodist preachers. There was one especially—whom she called "Hubb"—that was frequently the victim of her humor and sarcasm. In those early days, with such a numerous family, no time could be lost or idled away. The family room was like a large work shop, wherein winter nights everything was done that could be done indoors. Shoes were made or mended, brooms and baskets manufactured, of corn shelled, or hominy beat. It so happened that one night on which brother Hubb's round on the circuit had brought him in as a guest, there proved to be a heavy demand for shelled corn, to fill a contract for meal to be ground and delivered the next day, and all hands were engaged in shelling and sacking corn until bed time. These sacks were set in rows around the wall, and brother Hubb, who was a most impetuous, raving enthusiast, and who had acquired a habit of beating and mauling with his fists at almost every word he uttered, knelt down to pray by one of these sacks of corn, and soon became furious in his zeal, and prayed, and pounded the sack of corn until the whole family became weary. As soon as the family had arisen to their feet, the old lady went to the same sack, stooped down and commenced feeling it carefully. "Well, Hubb," she said, "I am just feeling if you beat us a mass of hominy. If you have, I'll make Loty (the negro woman) boil it for our breakfast!" This sarcasm is said to have almost cured Hubb of his ranting manner.

By the most untiring care and industry these two people raised a family of eight sons and four daughters, and acquired some property. Their son, Harrison, visited Kentucky; the first time whilst he never knew fear; that he made several trips through the wilderness solitary and alone, and on several occasions remained at the surveyor's camp, when most of his party had retreated to the settlement for fear of Indians. Through his influence his father and mother, and his brothers and brothers-in-law were induced to remove to Kentucky. The old man sold his farm and mill, and took a large portion of the pay in such merchandise as would be useful in a new country. He landed in Ohio county in about 1798, and bought a farm near Hartford, where the bountiful supply of store goods created almost as great an excitement as the lockets worn by Shultz's girls at the Order Root Rock of Muddy, as related by Ralph Ringwood.

The following story illustrates how they were appreciated by the young hunters and belles of the day: At a social party at the house of the old folks one night, a pert, conceited young hunter was seated next the table, on which the candle was burning; near by lay a pair of bright polished snuffers. The young gentleman was requested to snuff the candle, and immediately took it in his hand, and licking his thumb and finger was about to pinch it off, when some one said, "Use the snuffers!" If he sat down the candle, picked up the snuffers, opened them, looked in them, and then with an air of triumph, relicked his thumb and finger, pinched off the snuff, placed it in the snuffers, replaced them on the table with the remark, "Ain't they nice and handy?"

As long as health and strength would permit, their house was the common resort of the sick and afflicted, who needed advice, and the gay and witty who wished to measure lances with the backwoods, unpolished, off-hand wit, humor and sarcasm of the old lady, and even to this day stories of her sayings and doings are extant. Even the most sober and sagacious sought her society. The late eccentric James Axley, who preached her funeral, and was frequently in her company during her latter days, was heard to say that she had more actual eloquence and sound common sense than any woman he ever knew.

One of their children, a daughter, married a man by the name of Pae. She died, and an only grand-child—Peggy—accompanied the old folks to Kentucky. Richard, the oldest son, lived to be eighty-five years of age, and raised a large family. An attempt was made some years after to ascertain the names and locality of his descendants, for the purpose of procuring his bounty as a revolutionary soldier, but the effort was given up in despair. They were scattered everywhere through the west, even to Oregon. He has two daughters still living in this country bordering on ninety years, and enjoying good health.

Thomas, the next oldest, will be mentioned hereafter. Harrison, the third son, has been alluded to as one of the early pioneers. He was a plain, simple-hearted, honest and hospitable man. His house for years was the headquarters of land claimants, who came to the county to look after their land claims, and his thorough knowledge of the country, and the locality of the various surveys, rendering his services highly important, and in this way he often spent days and weeks, not only in entertaining visitors, but in showing them their lands, for all of which his ideas of old Virginia hospitality would not permit him to receive a cent. There was one remarkable trait in his character. Although celebrated for his boyhood for his unflinching courage and cool daring of danger, and among the first justices of the peace and sheriffs of the county, and acting as wagon-master during General Hope's campaign, an extensive trader and business man, he was never known to have a row, encounter or personal difficulty with any one. His descendants, though not as numerous as Richard's, are also scattered through the west and south.

William, the fourth son, was a man of stout frame, iron will, and untiring industry. He was the first man in the county to learn and appreciate the value of bottom lands for meadows, and the profits of stock-raising. From his extensive meadows he not only fed a large amount of cattle and horses, but sold hay to the citizens of Hartford and Morgantown. He also built the first brick dwelling house ever built in Ohio county. This house, though much abused since his death, still stands in a tolerable state of repair, and was thought a splendid piece of architecture in its early day. After living to a good old age, the old man died of that loathsome disease, emphysema. His posterity was not very numerous, nor migratory.

John and Septimus, the fifth and sixth sons, both died in middle life, leaving large families, the greater part of whom remained residents of the county, and grew up to be good disposed, industrious citizens. Joseph and Simon removed at an early period to the far west, and little is known of them. There is a remote probability that General or Colonel Joe Taylor, who flourished in the Mormon war, was the son of Simon, as he had a son of that name, who was raked and scamp enough when he left Kentucky to have flourished under Brigham's rule.

Hannah married Samuel Brown, Margaret married James Harshe, and Jane married Levi Piggman. The Harshehs removed to Indiana, and Piggmans to Ohio. Harshe's eldest son, Thomas, had joined the Methodist itinerancy, and gave the most extraordinary promise of talent and usefulness as a preacher when he died, lamented by all who knew him.

Although the descendants of the old original pair have become contaminated by some very injudicious crosses, it is remarkable how many of them retain characteristic traces of their parent stem. Hospitality, honesty, integrity, industry, and innate diffidence and modesty, still is the family tinge. It is remarkable, also, that they have mostly all pursued the quiet path of private life, mostly ignoring politics and political distinctions, nor have they ever gained notoriety in the calendar of crime.

[TO BE CONTINUED.]

BIBLE TERMS.—Readers of the Bible will be interested in the following explanations of expressions frequently met with in the Holy Scriptures. They are believed to be entirely correct: A Sabbath day's journey was about one English mile. Ezekiel's reed was 11 feet nearly. A cubit is 22 inches nearly. A finger's breadth is equal to one inch. A shekel was about fifty cents. A talent of gold was about $80. A talent of silver was $1,518.32. A talent of gold was $13,309. A piece of silver, or a penny, was 13 cents. A farthing was 3 cents. A gerd was two cents. A mite was one and a half cents. A homer contained 76 gallons and 5 pints. An ephah, or bath contained seven gallons and four pints. A hin was one gallon and two pints. A firkin was seven pints. An omer was six pints. A cab was three pints. A log was one-half pint.

From Cincinnati to San Francisco.

[CONCLUDED.]

When Sunday came, the ladies, all of whom were members of the different churches, asked for preaching. So, when breakfast was over and the porter had his room (the palace car) in order, I got my bible (being the one selected to preach) and took my seat facing the audience, and read the 17th chapter of St. John, and took Christ's solitude for his church as my theme, and preached the longest sermon of my life. Church being over, we prepared for dinner. Two of the ladies (the two unmarried ones of course) a San Francisco gentleman and myself joined together for a "home" dinner in the car. We had prepared for a baked hen—the most natural thing for a Methodist preacher. I paid seventy-five cents for my hen, a good price; but the day of small things, at least small prices, has not yet reached this country. When we had our several lunch boxes emptied, we had a good table spread, and I was called upon to offer prayer and thanks; which, being done, we ate over thirty-five miles of land and rail.

Salt Lake was one of the sights to be remembered, as it is the headquarters of Mormonism. Brigham Young, the great polygamist priest, died a few days after we passed, leaving nineteen widows to mourn or rejoice—which? And as his administrator's report has not yet been made, we don't know how many orphans were made fatherless by the death of the Prophet. But, as Brigham was a fruitful tree, the list is a long one.

We are now in the Sierra Nevada, Mountains, and such beautiful scenery is spread out before us my eyes never saw before. The rugged mountain peaks covered with tall pines, and now a deep canon, and now a towering rock rising for hundreds of feet over our heads. I need not attempt a description.

We passed through the gold mining regions, and see the earth torn up for miles in search of the "root of all evil." When I was a boy, in the "bend" above Hartford, I used to dig for roots ("sag") on a small scale. But here, the "root of all evil," gold, lies deep under all the surface of the earth. The methods of hydraulic mining would be of interest to your readers; but, for want of space, I pass on to California, where we stop to eat breakfast, and feast upon mountain trout and California fruit. We now pass through Sacramento Valley, the region of wheat, where some farms have fifty thousand acres in wheat. There has been no rain here for six months, and the wheat gets ripe and stands for weeks without damage, and the cooper is also a thrasher, and is driven through the field and takes off the heads of the wheat and thrashes out the grain, which is rolled off to be picked up, already bagged and ready for shipping. Millions of surplus wheat is ordinarily raised in California, but this year the crop is short. But as I was at the Pacific Coast Exposition or Mechanics Fair, at San Francisco, where the products of this wonderful State were collected. I will leave the railroad and pass on to the city. We came to the bay and run two miles on a trestle bridge, and were told to dismount and ship across the bay. I had some regrets at leaving the old car in which we had traveled so long and so far, but this is a world of change, and we move on with the crowd through a gate two miles from the shore, into a large trestle boat to take us across the bay. Friends by the dozens had come out on the way to meet loved ones, and I observed to a lady who came to meet her husband, my traveling friend, that I had no one to kiss me a welcome; but she would not take the hint, but said, "wait until you return to Cincinnati or the 'girl you left behind you,'" and then will be your time. I went to the Buss House, a hotel that covers one solid block, and registered and took a bath, a shave and a warm supper, and then felt like a new man. For shaving and shampooing I handed the barber fifty cents, and he said "two bits more please." I told him he was the cheapest man I had met in the way of charges, but I felt that he had done me a dollar's worth of good.

When morning came, I saw that my ship, The City of Pekin, which was to have left on the 1st inst., was not in, and would not leave until the 8th. So I set to work to "do" the city. The first day, I rambled about the streets and wrote letters to friends. These second day, I went to the Cliff House, a hotel five miles above the city on the beach, on a steep bluff, the foot of which is lashed by the waves of the sea. Here, for the first time, I beheld the Pacific ocean, and I need not attempt a description, nor to define my feelings on beholding the magnificence of the view before me. By the aid of a nautical glass, I brought in a ship at sea, which seemed a mere atom floating in the sky when viewed by the unaided eye. "Seal Rock," an island, a short distance from the shore, is an interesting feature, as it is covered with sea-birds—pelicans, gulls and ducks, and with huge sea lions or barking seals. These animals, so uncommon and awkward on the land, are, when in water, remarkably active and playful. The air would fairly tremble with their howling, half between the heavy bark of the bull dog and the roar of the lion.

The next day I went to Woodward's garden, not exactly a bear garden but a natural history garden. He has a museum of birds, the finest I have ever seen. Thousands of specimens including all the known varieties of the world, and one is surprised at the vast number, and the vast beauty of the feathered tribe. There is also a zoological department, filled with the usual list of monkeys, carnivora, herbivora, &c. His collection of deer, goats, buffalo, and in fact all animals with split hoofs are very superior. Then there is an aquarium representing both salt and fresh water fish in numbers. The hot-house, filled with tropical plants was very interesting, and the lake filled with water fowls, and art gallery and museum with scientific and historical specimens.

I will mention a few freaks of nature in this museum for the benefit of your readers who are interested in natural history. I saw a lamb without a mouth, and a pup of the Terrier breed with only one eye, and that in the middle of the face, four-legged chicken, a two-legged cat, a lamb with two distinct bodies and legs, joined at the neck, and with only one head; an animal I could not determine its species, with eyes and ears on its throat, a double calf or two, grown together on the sides much as the Siamese twins, and a calf with two perfect heads, a pig from Central America, with the head and mouth complete of a monkey, and two pigs grown together back to back, and a pig with two heads, and a dog with five legs, and a sheep with six legs. There were many other things equally as curious, among which was a full grown dog—deformed—which sat in the attitude of a toad. One would not believe that such strange freaks occur until we see them and are compelled to believe it. All their grounds are open the year round for twenty-five cents admission, and yet the people here go to a circus to see the animals.

I next went to the Exposition. The many things of art and mechanism, are so much like other shows of the kind, that I will not describe them, but notice only the agriculture. You have all heard of California fruit. Well, I have both seen and eaten of the same, and will give you an idea of its size and quality. To begin with, a squash. A specimen examined weighed forty pounds. Six onions examined measured twenty-one inches around, and weighed the six, fifteen pounds. A dish of pears weighed four and three-quarter pounds each. A quince I weighed drew one pound and six ounces. A bunch of grapes weighed five pounds, and each grape was as large as the Chickasaw plum. A plate of six peaches weighed three pounds. One Irish potato weighed four pounds and one sweet potato sixteen pounds.

The wheat, oats and barley was the finest I ever saw. There were blocks of over two hundred and fifty variety of wood, among which was the paper tree, from which an excellent quality of paper is made. Stalks of corn sixteen feet high, with as high as six ears to the stalk. Almond nuts on the bushes green, and silk cocoons and weaving in fact silk from the cocoon and egg to the cloth in the whole process to be seen; and I was shown a fine specimen of cotton from the southern part of the State that never had rain from planting until gathered.

Another feature in the mineral department was a salt taken from the earth in cakes just as stone or coal is mined at home. A huge block of salt had been carved out to represent a lady in modern costume, and labeled "Mrs. Lot." A fine quality of black coal, iron, lead, gold, silver, tin and glass, all taken from the State was on exhibition. It may be safely said that for variety and quality of products and climate, California beats the world.

Sabbath came again, and with it a delightful breeze and sunshine mixed in such proportions that it was pleasant to walk out with overcoat and gloves. All attempts to be a visitor were futile, and I was announced to preach morning and evening at the Central M. E. Church. I had at the morning about six hundred people to hear me and in the evening, nine hundred. The large church with galleries full length was comfortably filled with fine looking people. So that it was a pleasure to preach to such an audience. I never saw such fine looking people, the women will average thirty lbs, avoirdupois, greater than they will in the east.

On Monday I visited China Town, heard a Chinese preach an interesting sermon. I know it was interesting from the close attention his audience paid. Men would walk down the aisle and take a seat with hat on, and pipe in mouth, and smoke and hear at the same time. I then visited some of the Chinese factories and shops. I was surprised to see the fine quality of work done by them, ladies' shoes and ruffles and rouches, and the most delicate fabrics are manufactured by them. I went into a Chinese Broker's and bought some money, I sent you a piece, ten of which make a cent, and is worth to a Chinaman in trade as much as one cent, that is, one "cash." Chinese will buy as much in China as one cent will here, so they get for one cent what we get for one dime.

Our ship does not sail until the 12th (just) so we have over a week yet, (this is the 4th) and I don't know how I will pass the time. If you want it, I can take time to send you an occasional note of travel or history, as I pick it up.

We have a good number of passengers for the trip, there are about fourteen missionaries representing the American Board of Missions—the Presbyterians and the Methodists. Five of the party are young ladies. I am the only single man of the mission party, and I have placed myself under the treatment of a handsome lady doctor from New York city, so I hope to have a pleasant voyage.

How She Was Cured.

"Ida," said Mrs. Harland, one morning, "I wish you would give up that very unlady-like habit you have of using such slang expressions as 'You bet,' and 'Not by a jug full.' They sound vulgar when used by young men but when a lady condescends to such expressions they are positively revolting."

"Why, mamma"—and pretty black eyed Ida looked up with a mischievous smile. "It's becoming quite the fashion. Everybody—I mean all the girls—use them now a days."

"Not everybody," Ida replied Mrs. Harland; "not those who are refined and sensitive, among either young or old. I think I have often been in the company of well-bred people, and not a word of slang has been spoken. Consider for a moment, my dear, how coarse and vulgar it would seem in your papa or myself, if our usual habit was to talk after that fashion."

"I don't know," laughed Ida; "it would be so comical, rather jolly, I fancy. Odd, too! I just wish you would. Then we'd be a fraternity of slang wouldn't we? But there's the clock—always on the strike when I'm not half ready. Good morning, mamma. I must acquiesce;" and she laughed merrily again.

Mrs. Harland sighed to herself.—Ida was her only daughter, and it pained her to feel that she was under the influence of coarse companionship. "Alas for the school girls of the present day!" she murmured.—"What will the future bring?"

When Mr. Harland came home to dinner, his wife and he went into conference, and held a long and interesting conversation that seemed to result in satisfaction and some fun, for he laughed heartily, and declared he would see what he could do, for it was worth trying. Ida's brothers were let into the secret, and they declared it was a grand idea, and might cure her.

Ida coming straight from school, ran into the sitting room, as usual, for a kiss, when she was greeted by her mother with the exclamation—"Hello, pard! You home again?"

"Ida, for a brief second, looked her astonishment; then she answered, merrily: "Yes, mamma, 'right side up with care,' as they say on the China-boxes."

"Oh, cheese it! I don't cheat any gun but once," replied her mother, restraining herself by a violent effort, though she could hardly keep a grave face at Ida's surprise.

"Nor I either," Ida responded, with a laugh, and went to the piano to practice a new song.

"I say, sis, shut that off!" cried her father, who had entered the room. "We'll excuse the qualling just now. Hush is ready, and let's wait a down."

"What waltz shall I play?" queried Ida, with another faint laugh.

"I say hasn't this been a jolly day?" exclaimed her brother Ned.

"Thanked!" Sam responded.—"The grave lawyer-like Sam, with whom no one dared take a liberty. Did Ida's bars serve her right, or was home really getting 'topy-turvy' in her own favorite language."

"Bet your sweet life" added Ned, coolly. "Say, sis, how are you at school—up a tree?"

"Yes, at the top," retorted Ida, no longer laughing, but just a little inclined to pout.

"Bet your sweet life you'll fall soon then," was the courteous answer.

"Well, it won't be your fall, will it?"—and Ida bit her lip.

EDUCATIONAL.

This department will be conducted by W. L. HAWKINS.

Thanks to Mr. W. C. Morton, grocer, for the present of a nice pencil. Buck is generous, liberal, and fair to deal with.

The Superintendent H. A. M. Henderson, has published the School Law with comments on it, section after section. Every teacher in the State should procure a copy.

A teacher that "knows enough," knows nothing. Education is that training by which we become useful citizens.

P. J. Morgan would become stale, indeed, if the same articles were repeated. Take the paper, man, and keep posted.

To love one's neighbor is easy enough, if she is young, good looking, and agreeable—say about thirty thousand.

Teachers.—While I am not opposed to strict discipline in schools, I would not send a child of mine to a teacher, who can't walk across the house without a switch in his hand.

The Commissioner should indorse the certificate of teachers attending the institute, that trustees may know that the law requiring their attendance, has been complied with. Trustees should be careful on this point so as to avoid difficulty in drawing from school fund.

Ku-Klux.

Last Thursday about fifty or sixty men claiming to be from Airdrie, Green River, Richmond, and other mines in Muhlenberg county, and along Green River, came to the Taylor mines and got the hands at work, by coaxing and threatening took them to the woods where a meeting was held, and the miners at Taylor mines, who, by the way, were nearly or quite all colored men, were ordered to quit work, which they did, but we understand they have resumed again this week. From there they went to McHenry mines, and ordered the hands there to quit work. Captain Duncan and others at work in the bank refused to quit work. They stuck up a notice at the bank forbidding them to continue work under severe penalty. One of the names signed to this notice was M. L. Weeks, formerly Police Judge of Hamilton. He would make a sweet Peace officer if that is his notion of law and order. They then left, and the next day Captain David Duncan received the following card with coffin and pistol picture on the head of the letter.

"D. S. DUNCAN:—If you and your infernal gang don't leave this place (McHenry) in forty-eight hours, or quit working at black-legging, you and your co-workers will be doomed as above.

By order of the Body-Master of the A. O. H.:

A. O. H., we understand, means Ancient Order of Hibernians.

The above is the letter or notice verbatim except the ugly picture of pistol and coffin.

The owners of the mines learned that a drunken mob was coming from Rockport or elsewhere Friday night, to put the threat into execution.

The Sheriff summoned a posse of men who went to the mines at the proper time to meet the intimidators, but they were not to be found. If the Grand Jury passes by this flagrant outrage without indicting every one whose name can be obtained, then we see no use of such an expense as a Grand Jury, and the laws against ku-kluxing had as well be repealed. The names of many of the violators can be gotten by the proper effort. Any man has a right to quit work when he and his employer cannot agree upon the wages to be paid, but it is getting to a high pass when a man is willing to work for the wages offered and a lot of men steps in and forbids him to do so under pain of death, or some other fearful penalty.

While the miners have been on a strike at Taylor and McHenry mines, other mines on the P. and E., and St. Louis and S. E. R. R. have been running at full capacity and coining money, while these mines have been denied property and the laborers earning nothing. Let those who are not satisfied with the wages paid quit, but let those who are willing to work at that work, and then things will go on smoothly, and let the law be enforced against ku-kluxing and intimidation, if it takes the whole power of the State to do it.

Post-Masters Appointed.

Henry Quisenberry has been appointed at Lyons, Hancock county, vice J. J. Huff resigned, Wm. Sharp, at Nelson's Creek, Muhlenberg county, vice J. Bently resigned, S. K. Burton, at Glendale, Hardin county, vice G. M. Bibb resigned.

The Commissioners, A. B. Baird, S. Woodward and T. J. Smith, have completed their labors in dividing the county into magisterial and voting districts and have filed their written report with the County Judge.

They recommend six magisterial districts and twelve voting places. We are pleased with the number of districts, as we never could see the necessity of twenty-two magistrates and eleven constables. Twelve magistrates and six constables are quite sufficient and will do the business as well as the former number; besides it will pay them better and they can afford to give more time and attention to their office duties.

When the Judge passes upon the report we will publish it as adopted in full. Every voter in the county will want a copy to keep, as it will show the exact bounds of each magisterial and voting district. We will publish several hundred extra copies of that issue and will furnish them at five cents per copy, postage paid, to any address. Send in your orders in time.

The "Temperance Advance" edited by Elder T. E. Richey, Princeton, Ky., is fast becoming a popular temperance paper. It is published semi-monthly, at 50 cents a year, and is a four column, four-page journal. The third issue, published last Monday, is full of the very best reading matter. The selections are good and appropriate as could be found and the original matter is better still. Its circulation is rapidly increasing.

Col. D. H. Armstrong, a Democrat of undoubted standing, and a resident of St. Louis, has been appointed by Governor Phelps U. S. Senator to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Senator Boggs.

Letter from Buford District.

Editor Herald:

As it is very seldom you ever receive a communication from this part of the county, we will in this issue, hoping they will not prove uninteresting to your very interesting and highly appreciated columns.

The farmers have been very busy engaged in cutting tobacco and sowing wheat. The tobacco seems to be rather late about getting ripe, hence there is a considerable chance yet uncut, though it has been very fine weather for sowing wheat, and large crops are being sowed.

Miss Ellen Johnson and Miss Lou Rummage, of Daviess county, in company with Messrs. Horace and Morgan Ruby, spent last Saturday and Sunday with their relative, Mr. E. C. Hoover, of Hoover, Mo.

Mr. Sidney Bozler of this neighborhood fell from his barn one day last week and was very badly hurt but is now recovering.

A great deal of sickness in this community at this time, such as chills and fevers.

Mr. C. H. Hoover of this vicinity killed a very large red fox a few days ago.

We were very much pleased with the most eloquent sermons delivered by the Rev. T. J. Fender and Rev. John Loyall at White Oak last Sabbath. They are both able ministers and possess unbounded potency.

The public school of our district has commenced and is being taught by Isaac Hoover. Mr. H. has had some experience in school teaching and we think he will give satisfaction.

We have visited the enterprising cash merchants of Buford, Holbrook and Rogers, since their return from Louisville and were astonished when we looked over their mammoth stock of dry goods and to learn the remarkably low prices at which they are selling, and as to honorable dealing and low prices they can be excelled.

The Herald's boundless circulation and its editor long life is our wish.

From Fordville.

FORDVILLE, Sept. 29, 1877.

Editor Herald:

Fordville is extremely quiet at present. The farmers are busily engaged in cutting and housing the large crops of tobacco. Some are sowing wheat.

Mr. Little, a mill man of Evansville, passed through this part of the county a few days ago. He is looking out for sawlogs.

On Saturday, the 6th of October, there is to be a grand festival at Beach Grove Springs, about four miles east of this place. We all look forward to that day with fond anticipation. The houses in Fordville, most all beautifully papered with show bills. Make ready boys, the great circus will be here Thursday, so you had better save up a few nickels.

Mr. P. H. Haffey, our handsome dry goods merchant, left our town a few days ago, for Louisville, where he will buy a large stock of goods. Mr. H. is a business young man, and we think some young lady would do well to propose matrimony to him.

Joe Harder is a candidate for Jailor, next year.

The gentlemen near here who unfortunately got into a law suit, has diligently been reading the acts of the Legislature in the year, 1832 and we would guess he is now able to make a stout defence.

Sickness still lingers with us. The old burying ground near Fordville, has several fresh mounds.

Wm. H. Smith is fixing his young horse for the fair, and we believe he will bring the blue ribbon away.

Yours muchly, HARDWARE.

Rockport Letter.

ROCKPORT KY., Oct. 1st, 1877.

Editor Herald:

The church at this place is now completed and does honor to this community. It was dedicated last fourth Sabbath. Dedicatory sermon preached by Elder W. C. Taylor, of Auburn, Ky., from 32nd Isaiah, last verse; and, though sick, he preached an excellent discourse. Elder Kelly Maddox, of Ohio county, J. P. Taylor, of Warren county, were present. Elder Caselberg seemed to do his best to make the occasion pleasant to all. Prof. East of Bethel Female College, was here and gave us a good talk on education. The professor is a fine specimen of manhood, being erect in stature for one of his age, is a wide-awake man, full of life and energy. His lecture here has not been forgotten, and it is hoped he has infused some of the spirit of progress into the people of this community in regard to education.

Among the arrivals from a distance this week we note Mr. D. McHenry, and Dr. M. Griffin of Owensboro. Maj. J. H. Haycraft, put in an appearance Monday evening, and is working manfully for the interest of the Commonwealth. Judge Murray has not arrived yet, and it is probable that he is still sick, as he left Owensboro on last Thursday too sick to complete court there, and Maj. Baker Boyd acted as judge the remainder of the term.

Mr. Hodges, of the Lightning Rod firm of J. O. McCans & Co., is stopping at the Hartford House, and expects to canvass the county in the interest of their business. All persons desirous of protecting their families and property from this dread element, would do well to give him the best material and put it up on the most scientific plan.

Edwards & Foster have a bran new marble counter in their saloon, and are prepared to serve drinks to customers in a very neat style. They also have a nice and complete stock of groceries arriving daily.

Persons would do well to call and redeem their tickets in V. P. Addington's cash-drawer. If not done, they will be placed in the hands of the town marshal for collection.

Witnesses, jurors, defendants, lawyers, officers and visitors attending Criminal Court, will please take notice that we still have a small space on our books for the names of subscribers, and will be pleased to have them call while here and subscribe. Call to see us anyhow.

Cal. D. H. Armstrong, a Democrat of undoubted standing, and a resident of St. Louis, has been appointed by Governor Phelps U. S. Senator to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Senator Boggs.

CENTER TOWN, KY., Oct. 1.

Editor Herald:

As nothing from our vicinity has appeared in the Herald lately, I offer the following.

DEATHS.

We have had two deaths lately. Mrs. Ann Rowe, widow of the late Braxton Rowe, and Miss Mary Rowe, her grand-daughter. The former was tolerably well advanced in years, the latter yet in her teens. Many friends and relatives mourn the loss of both.

Their bodies lie in calm repose. At rest from toil, free from pain. The Saviour guards their spirits close. For He'll unite them once again.

Mr. James Hatcher had a tough spell of fevers a few weeks ago, but we see him stirring around, almost as good as new.

AGRICULTURE.

The people were never busier, cutting and housing tobacco, cutting corn, making sorghum molasses, and some getting ready for sowing wheat.

We learn that Mr. A. G. Brown has bought a drill for sowing wheat. Thank you, Amp., for your go-ahead-ness. It will pay better than Sells' Great European Show, with the balloons that didn't go up and giraffes that were not to be seen. By the way, won't the next show be bigger? The bills say it will.

RACE BALL.

Mr. Editor, do you play base ball? It would do your soul good to see Dennis Myers throw off his hat and run fifty yards after what we call a "grass cutter." We play every Saturday afternoon, and have some jolly fun.

We played against the Central club last Saturday, and—well, they've been playing longer than we, and they beat us a little—43 to 33. One reason of it was because Tom Morton's toe-nail—or the place where it used to be—has gotten well. I expect Jim Ford's dog-tail salve cured it. Sam Morton played with the Centertown club, but he couldn't play a fiddle now, if he had one. Anyhow, he goes with his finger wrapped up. Saturday, October 6th, we are to play the Central club on their grounds. Come down and umpire for us; then if we beat them you'll see how glad we'll be.

LEGAL.

'Squire Render held his September court here last Tuesday. As our people are not much for lawing, he got through early in the afternoon.

SCHOOLING.

The schools around us have all started up, with prospects of doing good work. W. B. Rowe, at Walton's Creek; Alfred Ashby, Jr., at the Miller school house; L. B. Loy, at Stony Point, and Miss Jennie Park, at the Ashby school house. To speak more particularly of our own teacher, Mr. W. B. Rowe, he pleases all, patrons and pupils. He is also superintendent of a prosperous Sabbath school at Walton's Creek church.

RELIGIOUS.

Rev. W. P. Bennett delivered, as he usually does, an able sermon, at Walton's Creek, last Sunday. It was aimed at those who fail to attend Saturday meetings, and it made some of the members wince. Previous to the services at church, Miss Nannie Morton, sister of our grocerman, was baptised at Ross' Ripple.

ENQUIRY.

What has become of "Goose Quill"? (I reckon G. stands for Goose.) He waited a long while for an office to hunt him—maybe he is now out hunting for an office, humming to himself with a melancholy air.

"Many a flower is born to blush unseen, And waste its sweetness on the desert air."

VISITING THE OLD HOME.

Mr. E. H. Rowe, of Spring Lick, paid a visit to his old home last Monday, and returned Tuesday. "De" is looking well, but he don't stay long enough when he comes.

LELAND.

Spotted Tail, White Tail, Swift Bear, Red Bear, and Touch-The-Clouds, all Indian Chiefs, were at Washington last week, holding a council with the President. The Pipe of Peace was smoked. How often has this been done and what the result has been, is known to many and the same results may be expected again.

Barrett's Ferry Items.

The farmers in this part of the county, are very busy cutting tobacco and sowing wheat.

The people in this neighborhood and in the surrounding neighborhoods are generally sociable and religious thorough going people. We have church meeting at New Baymas the second and third Sundays of each month. The Baptists occupy the second Sunday and the Campbellites the third. James Keown, of the Christian church, preached to a large congregation last Sunday.

We have a good school at New Baymas, under the supervision of T. J. Wedding. We think from the commencement that Mr. Wedding will give general satisfaction, as he is a fine scholar and attentive to business.

Mr. T. J. Barrett, one of the cleverest and among the oldest men in the country, is enjoying very good health, and is always ready to converse with those who call on him, upon any of the topics of the day. Being a well read man and a fine reasoner, and a man that keeps up with the times, he can entertain anyone who appreciates knowledge, exceedingly well.

I hear some talk of organizing a Good Templars' lodge at New Baymas. I think it would be one of the best things we could do for our country. Perhaps it would cause some of the young men and also some of the old men of our country, to quit spending every spare dime they get for that mighty demon, whisky, and spend it for the erection of school houses and churches, which are of vital importance to the educating of our children. I propose we meet at New Baymas on the first Saturday of October, for the purpose of organizing a Good Templars' lodge. What do you say?

ROCHESTER LETTER.

ROCHESTER, KY., Sept. 24, 1877.

Editor Herald:

Business in our town is steadily improving. Our enterprising young merchant Mr. L. Mendel, has gone East for a stock of dry goods, clothing &c, he has greatly enlarged his store-room by refitting his warehouse, and tearing out the partition between the two, thus making one large room. He has also built a new warehouse on an adjoining lot.

Mr. Pink Poole is going to build an elegant store-room also in this block, J. P. McKenney having removed his warehouse one door above, thus leaving room for an elegant store, which we are confident Mr. Poole will erect. Our enterprising tinsmiths Messrs. Boggess & Bro., are also enlarging their building, and we understand they are going to build an undertaker's shop also.

Sickness is not so prevalent as it was some time past, but our three physicians, Drs. Hendricks, Strother, and Westerfield, are still doing a good practice.

Mr. J. P. McKenney is going to Louisville in a few days to purchase a large stock of groceries. He is a nice man and has the entire confidence of all his customers. We wish him success.

Our Fall schools have opened, with two in Rochester, and one in our adjoining town Skilesville, with Mr. El. Harper as teacher in Rochester district school, Rev. J. V. Price as principal of the Rochester Academy, with Miss. Haden as assistant. Miss. Lizzie Morton is "teaching the young ladies how to shoot" in the Skilesville school.

Our dear beloved friend Coley Duncan, has left us, yes, gone. It would not have been so bad if he had left only us, but—well he left many friends we know, but still there is—well "such is life."

Sells' circus and menagerie was here last Saturday, and it seemed as though the entire population of the three counties were here, with a few companies of the Eastern war thrown in. There was a right smart "sell" about the whole thing. A ride der ci.

Notes.

One of the first and most important duties of the next House of Representatives of the Kentucky Legislature will be the election of a Speaker. Already a number of gentlemen have been spoken of in connection with that position. Prominently among the number is the Hon. Lytle Cooke, of Louisville.

Mr. Cooke is a gentleman in every way eminently qualified for the position. He has recently served a full term of four years in the State Senate, in which body he was a prominent and most useful member, always attentive to the interests of his immediate constituents, and of the whole State, and in every way discharged the duties of his responsible position with credit and distinction. Being an able lawyer, and thoroughly versed in parliamentary rules and practices, he would, should the choice of the House fall upon him, make an efficient, courteous and able presiding officer.

Things Generally.

Editor Herald:

I have just been on a trip in the interest of my paper—the Temperance Advance, in which I met with grand success. Everywhere I heard the name "Hartford Herald" uttered frequently and always eulogistically. At Greenville I spent twenty-four hours. Some of the stores have just been filled up with new goods. The large brick known as the Summer's House, now kept by the Messrs. Kahn, formerly of Rockport, is chuck full. I think I never saw such a stock in an inland town.

Mr. J. C. Howard has a full store. He is a gentleman of the first order and always deals fairly. Try him when you go to Greenville.

Mr. C. E. Eades has just opened a handsome stock of groceries, confectioneries, &c. He is doing well; but time and space forbids me to mention all the houses. Suffice it to say that Greenville is a nice place and the citizens clever people. The only noticeable feature to object to is the drinking establishments. Greenville is badly cursed in this respect; but as the Temperance Advance has now twenty-nine subscribers, it is hoped its influence will greatly promote reformation there.

At South Carrollton there are two bar-rooms, but I learned that the patronage is insufficient to render them prosperous. This speaks well for the place. The South Carrollton Institute, over which Prof. Wayland Alexander presides so efficiently, has just claimed to much of the honor due for the moral status of the town. It is surprising to note the prosperity and efficiency of this school. Although in its infancy, it has already matriculated 175 students this season, and the cry is "still they come." The large new building for the school is rapidly approximating completion. Soon they will be straightened out, and then few if any inland towns will be able to boast of better educational advantages than South Carrollton. All honor to such men as Wayland Alexander, Rev. J. M. Peay, Dr. J. S. Coleman, and others like them, for using their influence in establishing such beacon lights over the land.

I must be allowed to speak of Brown & Davis, marble men, whose work is so popular over western Kentucky. It is sufficient to throw out the hint that they have made it a point to advertise extensively; and here lies the secret of their success. Business men of whatever profession, take a lesson from their example and advertise your business. But enough.

More anon. T. E. RICHEY.

A Correction.

The readers of the Herald are requested to note that the present number of the Fragmentary history was published some years ago, and that the daughters of Richard Taylor, spoken of as still living, have recently died, and the old brick house built by William Taylor, has since been burned down. The undersigned should have corrected this in the original text, but neglected it through inadvertence. H. D. TAYLOR.

Louisville Trade Gossip.

Business has been lively all the week, and continues to increase, particularly as to the stock market.

A lot of shippers came in from the South, buying live.

There is a heavy and increasing demand both for horses and mules.

There were 115 head of horses sold at auction at $25 to $145 per head, and about 40 mules at $50 to $100.

The cattle market remains unchanged. Extra shippers 44@55; best butcher stuff 34@44; medium to good 24@33; scalawags 14@22.

Hogs were active all week with an advance over last report, but they declined again toward the last of the week. Best hogs 54@54; fair to good 4-50@5-10; stockers 51@54.

Sheep and lambs closed rather dull, extra old sheep 24@41; common to medium 36@33; lambs were more active than sheep; best lambs 31; common to medium 36@33.

The stock receipts for the week were: Cattle, 1320; hogs, 2000; sheep and lambs, 1900; mules, 175.

The grain market remains quiet and firm, with an easy feeling, at our last quotations.

The fruit and vegetable markets are unchanged.

The tobacco market was firm and active all week for good grades of leaf; low grades and logs were dull, without quotable change. The sales for the week, &c., were reported as follows:

Valuable Real Estate For Sale.

We are authorized and requested by R. S. Mosely, of Hartford, to publicly announce that he offers for sale, on reasonable terms, a large portion of his real estate property, to-wit:

1st. Two shares of stock in the Rensselaer Coal Company.

2nd. His present dwelling house and lot containing 1/2 acre, and situated opposite the Hartford Hotel.

3rd. Another lot of 1/2 acre adjoining this and fronting on Union street.

4th. A large two-story business house, on the corner of Main and Washington streets, and opposite the court house square.

5th. A house and several acres of ground in the upper portion of Hartford, known as the "Dick Rucker" place.

6th. Also two several tracts of land below and adjoining Hartford on Rough Creek.

We are informed and so state, that one of the reasons for making the above offer is, he wants to make valuable improvements on his place opposite the Fair Grounds by rebuilding his houses burned last winter, and give others a chance to build up the town.

Deceit.

Dr. G. E. Stowers, a dentist well known here, will be in Hartford, October 10th, 1877, and will remain a week or ten days, and will do any work in his profession that may be desired. n39-tf.

Mr. J. M. Rogers, of Cromwell, district, brought us a stalk of pop corn last Monday, that grew on his premises this year, which has ten good ears of corn on it. He started with another that had eight ears on it, but it is at Beaver Dam. Wonder if Craddock can beat it?

Mr. Elijah Boyd, living near Rosine, this county, had his dwelling and all his household effects destroyed by fire, on Tuesday last week. All the family except Mrs. Boyd were out at work. The occurrence leaves the family in very destitute circumstances. Why is it that our people do not insure? Almost every week we chronicle a loss by fire. Barrett & Brother are agents for the old reliable Royal Insurance Company, which offers good security. Property not worth insuring is not worth owning. Insure at once.

Boys, get your money ready, Robbins' great show will be at Fordville to-morrow, Hartford Friday, and Cromwell Saturday. It is said to be the mammoth circus, and manager of America.

A Baster.

I will run my four-year-old colt, Fisherman, against any horse, or mare, of his own age, owned in Ohio county, for a reasonable stake. Distance, from one-half to one mile. W. L. S. BRACKEN, Cromwell, Ky.

The Court of Claims of Ohio county, met last Monday, and owing to its conflict with the Criminal Court, adjourned over until Monday, October 29th 1877. Those having claims against the county had better make a note of this.

I. P. Barnard, of Beaver Dam, has a lot of new furniture. He can fill any order at prices as low as can be obtained anywhere.

Old lady, when you sell your butter and eggs, retain the proceeds in one of those nice suits for "our beloved Johnny" which Julius Winter & Co., S. E. corner 3rd and Market streets, Louisville, Ky., sell at such low prices.

A New Feature in Hartford.

Our enterprising fellow-citizen W. C. Morton, not satisfied with having one of the most complete groceries in the Green River County, has added to his already large trade, the furniture business. He has a nice line of furniture of every description. In addition to his stock he has a photograph, or cut of any kind of furniture that is made, which he can furnish on order in three days time. Any of the goods he has on hand, or may order for customers, will be furnished at Louisville retail prices, without doubt. Don't fail to give him a trial.

The renting of booths, and contracting for wood, feed &c., will be attended to next Saturday, on the Fair Grounds.

Go to Holbrook & Rogers, Bedford, Ky., and buy your Winter Boots and Shoes.

An Important Move.

Mr. R. P. Rowe, Common School Commissioner, has recently moved to town so as to be more convenient to his business. He can now, until further notice, be found at his office in the court house any day in the week. We are glad to welcome him and family as citizens of our town.

CROOK'S ELECTRIC OIL!

THE cures performed by this medicine are so wonderful and instantaneous, so satisfactory and mitigating of human ills, as to call upon public functionaries, and those having charge of public institutions for the sick and suffering, to look upon this Electric Oil, with the simple efficacy of the Electric Oil. Its effects are so astonishing as to resemble those of the Scriptures, as performed when anointing with oil.

This preparation contains the most powerful ingredients being owing to the Vegetable kingdom, and, owing to its very penetrating quality, it has given relief in cases of the most obstinate and excruciating pain when all other remedies have completely failed.

AS THE BEST FAMILY SEWING MACHINE.

Its competitors receiving only an award for some special feature of their machines.

The World-renowned Wilson Shuttle Sewing Machine

Has Unlimited Capacity to do all kinds of Family Sewing and Manufacturing.

ITS PATENT AUTOMATIC "CUT OFF" on the hand wheel prevents the machine from running backward, and obviates the necessity of taking the work from the machine to wind thread on the bobbin, which must be done with all other Sewing Machines, to the great annoyance of the operator, especially in tucking, hemming and ruffling. It does one-third more work in a given length of time than any other Sewing machine.

WITH EVERY MOTION OF THE FOOT THE MACHINE MAKES SIX STITCHES.

Three Wilson Machines will do as much work in one day as four other Machines.

It requires no special instructions to use it; an Illustrated Direction Book is furnished with each machine.

IT CANNOT GET OUT OF ORDER, AND THE ADJUSTMENTS ARE ABSOLUTELY PERFECT.

A properly executed Certificate is furnished with each machine, guaranteeing to keep it in repair, free of charge, for five years. Machines sold on easy terms of payment, and delivered, free of charge, at any Railroad Depot in the United States where we have no Agents.
